The Body at the Cochran Hall Hotel Awaiting the Arrival of Last evening, at Cochran Hall Hotel, kept by Mrs. E. LaMalta, a young man, W. H. Stewart, committed suicide by taking an overdose of morphine. Deputy-Coroner Charley Smith held an inquest on the body, and the jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death from taking an overdose of morphine, administered by his own hand. The deceased was about twentyown hand. The deceased was about twentyeight years of age, and resided with his father, some six miles out on the Poplar street turnpike. From the testimony brought before the Coroner it appeared that the deceased, when he came to town had been in the habit of frequenting, boarding and lodging at the Cochran Hall Hotel. He was a dissipated young man, and it seemed was a dissipated young man, and it seemed had been corrected by his father, at least he said he had been driven from home. Yester-dsy afternoon he appeared on the gallery of the hotel and sat down to read the evening the hotel and sat down to read the evening paper. He asked a stranger if he (Stewart) was not a brave man, and the inquiry being made why, he responded, saying that he had taken six ounces of morphine and would soon go to sleep. No attention was paid to his remark, but soon his head fell over and he became insensible. This caused an alarm, and Dr. Marable was sent for and the usual remedies administered, but too late; he payer stoke afterward. A few nickels the usual remedies administered, but too late; he never spoke afterward. A few nickels were found in his possession, also several letters, and a notebook containing a copy of a love-letter to "Miss L.," and a scrap of doggerel poetry taken from the columns of the APPEAL. The letters and note-book contained personal matters of no interest to the public. From all that could be learned the young man seemed to be suffering from melancholy and the effect of intoxication when he committed the rash act. The body was kept at the hotel last night to await the arrival of the relatives of the unfortunate man.
